SMALL REWARD.

THE HERALD doesn't want to appear querulous, nor ungrateful, but now that Governor Murray has been reappointed, it appears to us that something was said a little while ago about a bigger and better place being ready for the gentleman. How was this, anyhow? Was that more important and better office a hoax, or did the administration forget all about it? Of course, THE HERALD is not complaining that Mr. Arthur hasn't done enough for Utah in giving us back our beautiful Kentuckian; it merely suggests that the President has been somewhat shabby in his treatment of Murray. It strikes us that the man who in four brief years has done what all the statesmen of the republic had tried and failed to do after a third of a century of scheming and labor, should be rewarded by something better than an insignificant twenty-six hundred-dollar governorship. It will be understood that we refer to the solution of the Mormon problem. Murray was the one man who could adjust the difficulty that has existed out here so long, and he did it almost in a twinkling, the Mormon question that he found upon his arrival four years ago being a thing of the past and almost forgotten. It was because of his valuable and statesmanlike services in the matter that we understood he was to be honored and rewarded in a manner to make the small fry envious; but instead Mr. Arthur sends him back to do nothing for all has been done. However, the President's want of gratitude will result in Utah's great enjoyment. In the absence of the "problem" which the Governor has manfully solved, we will have little or nothing to do, save the pleasure of feasting the eyes and gratifying the senses by gazing upon the form and features of our own, our beautiful, our beloved Eli.

CALIFORNIA AND NEVADA

Several gentlemen from California, Nevada and Oregon, en route for New York, have been interviewed in Chicago regarding the political outlook on the Pacific Coast, and the probable outcome of the Presidential election next fall. They agree that Oregon will go for Blaine, but say California and Nevada will cast their votes for the Democratic nominee. This estimate is probably correct, though the Democrats do not need the electoral votes of the two States named; indeed, those votes would not help the Democratic nominee unless it be help to make the majority larger. California is properly a Democratic State. It gave its electoral vote to Hancock and English in 1880. In 1882, it sent a solid Democratic delegation of six to Congress, and chose a Democratic governor. The majorities of the two congressmen-at-large were respectively 3,485 and 3,825, and these figures very nearly represent the actual majority of the party in the State. The local question of Chinese cheap labor is of greater importance to a large percentage of Coast voters, than the principles of the national parties. It is rather to be hoped that the Democrats will lose the State rather than gain it by any un-American declaration regarding the Chinese. The party can better afford to do without California for all time, or even lose the election, than place itself on record as upholding an un-American doctrine like the exclusion of Chinese. Blaine is understood to be radically anti-Chinese, not because of any principle involved, but for the reason that he is a demagogue, and fully understands that the vote of a loafer counts just as much as the ballot of the active, intelligent, progressive business man. If the Chinese could and would vote, and they outnumbered the idlers, gamblers and loafers, Mr. Blaine would certainly be in favor of Chinese immigration and a pronounced friend of Chinese cheap labor. Should the Democrats put an anti-Chinese plank in their platform, and nominate a man for President who would be demagogue enough to proclaim against the 'Mongolian,' Mr. Blaine would get left in California, notwithstanding the circuitous tactics employed by the Golden State delegation to the late Chicago convention. On the other hand if the Democrats will keep within the line of its historic principles, and say nothing of the heathen question of the Coast, the Republican candidate may be able to capture the 4,000 or 5,000 voters who rightly belong to the Democratic party, but who would go with the other organization for the sake of emphasizing their hatred towards the Chinese.

As to Nevada, the two parties are so nearly equal as to numbers that the best posed politicians can do no more than guess as to what will be the result of next November's voting. If it were important for either party to have the electoral vote of the State, a very small "bureau" would get it, as 600 or 700 votes would be all required to turn the election. It is immaterial which way both Nevada and California go, but the chances are as good for the Democrats as for the Republicans.

ROSCREANS' AMBITION.

After a brief season of quiet, General Roscreans bobs up extremely, and as usual wants something. This time it is the nomination for Vice-President on the Democratic ticket that he hankers for. If memory is correct, "Rosey" thought, four years ago, that the Presidency was not too good or too big for him, and when he saw that the place was out of his reach he admitted that the Vice-Presidency had consolatory elements. Since he and his abilities both failed of proper recognition at the hands of his party, General Roscreans has felt that something was radically wrong in the Democratic party, and he has never felt more than half contented to remain in it. Perhaps if the great party of the people will humble itself to the extent of asking him to accept the nomination for the second place on the national ticket he will consent to lead on to victory. If the party should happen to blunder into a refusal of his generous offer, and should go along and win a triumph without him, "Rosey" would never forgive the Republicans for allowing the Democrats to beat them without the assistance of his name. In the war Roscreans was a grand old fighter—in the papers; in civil life he is a grand old statesman—in the Congressional Record and the newspapers; in politics he is a grand old humbug, both in and out of the papers. When the Democracy concludes to make itself supremely ridiculous it will probably nominate him for Vice-President, but never before.

How CIVIL service reform works under Republican administration, has just again been demonstrated. J. W. Curry, the postmaster at Manatee, Florida, was a Democrat, a discovery which Inspector Crawford made on the occasion of a recent visit, whereupon the latter immediately wrote to the department: "Allow me to call your attention to the fact that John W. Curry, the postmaster at Manatee, Fla., is a bourbon democrat of the most pronounced character. I found an old resident in Manatee in the person of Austin E. Stebbins formerly from Illinois, but for some years a resident of that town. He was for three years in the Union army, and has always been an avowed and outspoken Republican." This was sufficient to satisfy the postal authorities that a change was absolutely necessary, though Mr. Curry had proven himself an efficient honest officer. Stebbins was appointed whereupon the people of Manatee without regard to party, memorialized Congress protesting against Curry's removal for political reasons, and against Stebbins' appointment "for party purposes in violation of civil service law." As Congress is powerless to act in the matter, and as the post office department will not act, Mr. Stebbins will continue in the office, not because he is a competent person, but for the reason that he is a Republican.

CENTRAL PACIFIC.

Mr. Charles Crocker, of the Central Pacific and Southern Pacific railroad companies, denies the truth of the story published in the San Francisco Bulletin the other day, and telegraphed over the country, to the effect that the employees of the companies would not be paid this month, and that 25 cents on the dollar could not be borrowed on Southern Pacific bonds. Mr. Crocker is undoubtedly familiar with the finances of the corporations and he probably speaks the truth when he declares the employees will be paid as usual and that he is loaning money on Southern Pacific bonds up to 90 per cent. of the par value. The two companies mentioned are in point of fact one mammoth corporation, owning and controlling not only the road from Ogden to San Francisco and from El Paso, or perhaps more properly from New Orleans to San Francisco, but also various shorter lines on the coast which are not only profitable in themselves, but important feeders of the trunk. This gigantic concern virtually controls the Pacific Coast business, its only competitor being the Northern Pacific, which hardly touches the vast field belonging to the C. P. and S. P. The latter fix prices east and west, and the traveling and shipping public must pay. The Central Pacific is not in the troublous predicament of the Union Pacific, which has four competing lines to contend with. It would not cause surprise to learn that the U. P. found it necessary to ask consideration at the hands of its employees; but when the great railroad corporation of the Pacific Coast has to request its workmen to wait for their pay, we may look for deplorably dull times industrially, in the far west. It is true the Southern Pacific has suffered greatly during the winter and spring, hundreds of miles of track being washed away, the damage running up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, if not into millions; at the same time the business of the two companies has been enormous, and all who have had occasion to patronize them will make oath that they will not be long in making good losses, just as they have been doing.

Z. C. M. I.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 13th, 1884.

H. E. Eldredge, Esq., Supt. Z. C. M. I.:

DEAR SIR.—I am the owner of a Miller Wrought Iron Range, No. 18, with elevated oven shelf, which I purchased from you and consider it just capital. I believe it consumes less fuel than the ordinary No. 7 Stove; it is roomy, and large enough for a family of thirty persons; it bakes well and has the best attachments for hot water I ever saw, requiring no extra fuel to keep forty gallons at boiling heat, it takes up but little room, is plain, and consequently easily kept clean, in fact it is complete and comfortable.

When in Cincinnati in January last, I learned from one of Mr. Miller's salesmen they had just taken in exchange for a larger one the first Range they ever made, which, after being in constant use for over sixteen years, was apparently as good as new.

I only know of three defects with it—it has to be set in place, it has to be cleaned occasionally, and you have to buy Coal or Wood for it. If you can obviate these inconveniences, do so, if you cannot, then buy a Miller, and you will always find your wife happy and your food well cooked.

Yours truly, E. H. PARSONS,

347 Second South Street E.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 10th, 1884.

Z. C. M. I.,

GENTLEMEN.—The Miller Wrought Iron Range I purchased from you gives the greatest satisfaction as regards its Baking and Cooking qualities, and also its Water heating Apparatus. I do not believe its equal can be found, and as an economizer of fuel I can cheerfully recommend it.

Yours very truly, JOHN H. GROESBECK.

SALT LAKE CITY, April 20th, 1884.

Z. C. M. I.:

GENTS.—The Miller Wrought Iron Range I purchased from you nine years ago, is still in use and giving entire satisfaction. I would not sell it at any reasonable price if I could not get another of the same kind. I would recommend all wishing to get a first-class Range, to buy the Miller.

Yours truly, WILLIAM NAYLOR,

Thirteenth Ward, Salt Lake City.

SALT LAKE CITY, April 20th, 1884.

Z. C. M. I.:

GENTLEMEN.—I cheerfully recommend the Miller Wrought Iron Range as by far the best Cooking Range that we have ever used, our experience embracing several kinds. As an Economizer of Fuel it is a perfectly perfect, and as a Boiler Attachment Heater, I know of none so good. Very truly yours, BENJAMIN HAMPTON, Twelfth Ward, Salt Lake City.

GENTLEMEN.—I take great pleasure in endorsing Mr. Hampton's Testimonial, from a grateful experience during the past year.

Yours respectfully, GEO. T. ODELL,

Twelfth Ward, Salt Lake City, of Grant, Odell & Co.
